By all accounts, the most pressing need at the Capitol is more office and hearing space, and an upgrade of electrical, plumbing and information infraplumbing and information intra-structure.

But also at issue are life safety and security issues, Bullding codes and security needs have changed quite a bit since the building was completed in 1920.

The commission's proposal includes a lot more than just the needed upgrades and repair of obvious cosmetic blemishes. It also includes proposals to return many areas and features of the building to their original state and purpose.

building to their original state and purpose. For example, the proposal includes restoring skylight shafts that allow natural sunlight to reach all four floors of the build-ing, restoring the governor's pre-sent office to its original use as an anteroom for visitors, and reestablishing a statuary hall on the fourth floor, used as office space.

"It's interesting that after all these years, we have suddenly come to the realization that if we come to the realization that if we had left some things well enough alone we would've been better off," Guerber said. "The building functioned better the way it was designed than it does now." But because of the price tag attached to the entire project, key lawmakers – and even members of the Capitol Congmission, such as Guerber – recognize the whole proposal is not likely to be adopted.

Brady Act blocks gun sales

Background checks stopped 204,000 buyers felony charges.

Last year, the report said, all state agencies had access to

"computer databases that record past felony convictions, and many accessed databases with other disqualifying information such as fugitive status, court restraining orders, mental illness and domestic violence misdemeanor convictions."

The Clinton administration long has argued that the states are better equipped than the FBI to do background checks, but some states have not wanted to pay the costs. Twenty-six states handle some or all their checks. The overall national rejection rate has remained 2.4 percent since 1994, despite the Nov. 30, 1998, switch to computerized instant checks and the addition then of checks on long-gun purchasers. Only handgun buyers were checked before.

HAVANA (AP) - Fidel Castro

HAVANA (AP) – Fidel Castro said Sunday support for the 38-year-old trade embargo against Cuba was beginning to "wear down" as American business seeks new markets.

In a meeting with members of the Congressional Black Caucus, Castro also suggested Cuba could extend a free medical training program to poor American students who would return home to practice in poor regions.

He also voiced support for the work of black members of Congress but said he was disendented with elected politics in general and American presidential politics in particular. Castro, 73, who has ruled his island nation for 41 years, said he found hope in recent congressional moves to lift restrictions on U.S. sales of food and medicine to Cuba.

- Two words: A.C. Run the air-conditioning in the house and in the car, and close the windows.
- Don't blame the neigh-bors. Pollen can be carried by the wind for hundreds of miles, so chances are very good that whatever's bug-ging you isn't growing next door.
- You're not a morning per-son. Time your outdoor activities so that you're out-side when pollen and mold levels are their lowest. Grass pollinates between 5-

Grass pollinates between 5-10 a.m., so if you're going to exercise outside, do it in the early afternoon. Ditto weed allergies. Weeds pollinate at sunrise and sundown as air cur-rents turn over. Calm, mid-day activities are best for you.

- Don't close on that new house quite yet. Moving may improve your allergies, but when an allergy sufferen ups stakes, exposure to different allergens in the new location will likely result in a new set of allergent to the different promisers of symptoms for another. If possible, spend two weeks to a month in your new locale to see whether your symptoms improve.

Follow your prescription drug labels. And don't assume that if your allergies get worse, increasing the desage will make them better. Besides, anthistames, decongestants and anti-inflamatories can have unintended side-effects.

Don't overwater your indoor plants. If you're allergic to mold, it encourages mold growth.

Don't touch that dial

Bacteria and viruses from germ-coated telephones easily smear onto a person's hands, new tests have found. And microbes clinging to funce handles and sponges may be just as eager for a change in geography. The studies also demonstrated that a mere touch can transfer about 34 percent of bacteria on a fingertip to a person's lower lip. The tests, conducted by researchers from the University of Arizona, involved bacteria-called Serratia, which are similar to many diarrhea-causing bacteria. The scenario isn't much pretnier for viruses. Many viruses can last hours or days on hard surfaces. If a sick person leaves even a few drops of "nassal secretions" on a faucet handle, more than 1,000 virus particles will be passed on to the next person who touches it. These and other studies were described last month at the annual meeting of the Amonth at the annual meeting of the Amonth as the annu

Wrong about epilepsy

Wrong about opliepsy Newspapers and magazines reporting on people with epilepsy often get their facts rong, a new survey has shown. This incorrect information perpetuates stigma and ad medical advice on the disease, and can unnecessarily scare or shame patients and their families, say researchers from Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland in Baltimore, and a reporter, from The Washington Post. Their findings appear in a report titled "The Scarlet E" in the latest issue of the journal Neurology.

Health notes

The researchers surveyed 210 stories on epilepsy published between 1991 and 1996. Thirty percent had inaccuracies including quoting doctors with unrealistic expectations about new treatments, using demonic imagery and referring to epileptic sciaures as "deathly." In fact, said Dr. Gregory uncontrollable sciaures dies from an actual scirure itself. Another misconception was that it's necessary to pry someone's jaw open to free their tongue if they are having a scieure. It's physically impossible to choke on your tongue, Krauss said. The worst that will happen is that people having scirures will bite their tongue.

Not sitting pretty

Not sitting pretty

White-collar workers, get out of that chair. Sitting all day at a desk, not stretching and working out, and then maybe golfing on the weekend is just asking for trouble, doctors say. "The sitting position maximizes pressure on the lumbar discs in the lower back, and that leads to back problems in adults," says Vijay Vad of the Hospital for Special Surgery in New York City. "Unfortunately, because of the twisting motion of the back; golf falls into the high-risk category for lowback problems."

Take the strain out of quilting

Take the strain

Ask quilt makers what they love about the process, and you'll hear similar answers: "Quilting offers solitude, to think our private thoughts. It makes us relaxed and centered."

Method Texas, a quilter and author, says: "The sensual allure of the fabric invites us to slow down and enjoy life." But as a doctor, she cautions us about the downside of quilting. In a new book, "Rs for Quilters" (C&T, $14.95), Mech points out that quilting involves repetitive movements made over long hours.
"To avoid injury to your hands, wrists, elbows and spine," she says. "you must have a healthy respect for the needs and limitations of your body." This book includes information on how to outsmart carpal tunnel syndrome, defeat age-related eye changes, heal sore (ingers and avoid backaches and it suggests ways to design a healthy work space.

A few tips from the book
Whether you sit at a medie swaying to keep your back in slight motion. Rest both feet on the floor and have a support for your lower back.

Take short breaks hourly for stretching and resting.
Vary tasks such as sewing, pressing and cutting. When pressing, try placing your left foot on a little stool to forestall back strain.

Laser surgery to correct vision

LASIK surgery corrects mild myopla (nearsightedness) by reshaping the eye's transparent cornea, helping the eye focus light more sharply.

THE SURGERY

A nearsighted person has comeas that are curved too steeply. In LASIK, the surgeon uses a beam of ultraviolet light to remove small bits of eye tissue and flatten the comea.

- Outpationt procedure
 Usually gaintess ■ Usually paintess
 ■ Takes about 15 minutes por eye
 ■ Patient is awake the whole time, can usually return to work the next day

LASIK means "laser-assisted in situ

HOW IT'S DONE

O Preparation

- The eye is numbed with anesthotic eye drops and the surgeon marks a circle on the comea with water-soluble ink
- A suction ring is applied to hold the eye steady

(a) Cutting a flap

- A cutting instrument called a microkoratome slices off a thin layer of comea 20% of the comea's thickness
- The hinged flap is lifted to the side, exposing the comes cells underneath

(a) Trimming the comea

- The surgeon uses a computer-controlled laser to reshape the comea with high-energy pulses of ultravioled light
 The laser surgery takes about 60 seconds, with each pulse removing 0.25 microns of tissue, about 1/300in the thickness of a human hair

Laser eye surgery isn't for everyone

The best candidates for LASIK are people who need relatively little vision correction, according to Dr. Joseph Dello Russo of Bergenfield, N.J. Those with more severe near- or farsighted ness may have to continue wearing glasses – although ones with much weaker prescriptions – even after LASIK surgery.

also may be ruled out, because the laser machines currently in use have a limited range and cannot cover the entire area. This could produce a halo or glare effect, caused by light passing through both the corrected and uncorrected areas of the cornea when the pupil enlarges in dakness.

Most people with normal pupil sizes who undergo LASIK can expect to experience some glare or halo effect around lights at night, but that problem usually goes away in about six months. However, about 5 percent of people who undergo the procedure have reported a lasting effect.

sadly, few of those exist.

The basics for any child's skin are a gentle cleanser; a lightweight, soothing, notirritating moisturizer (most of the fragrance-free eversions are those grance-free eversions are those like Cetaphil Moisturizer.

Eucerin Lite and Lubridemm) and a zinc oxide-based diaper rash product (definitely fragrance are e-it hurts to put fragrance on red, rashy skin), and the ones at the drugstore are just fine for this. Then, a talc-free dusting powder, because you must never use talc on a baby's skin, and of course it should be fragrance-free.

Plain constarch is an excellent.

Plain cornstarch is an excellent option for this; it is the primary ingredient in most tale-free baby powders, and plain cornstarch Your mouth warns of health problems

A low-salt, low-fart diet high in produce can lower blood pressure as much as some medications, a new five-center study suggests.

In the state of t

dation of 2,400 milligrams of sodi-um – about a teaspoon of salt – may need to be lowered. Most salt consumption comes not from the salt shaker but from sodium added to processed foods. The effectiveness of salt cut-backs in lowering blood pressure has been the subject of intense debate and controversy. Less than half of those with high blood pressure are thought to be salt-sensitive. But NHLBI officials said the latest findings offer more con-vincing evidence that reducing dietary sodium can help control blood pressure in all Americans.

ACTOSE INTOLERANCE WHAT IS LACTOSE

Lartoe intolerance is the inability to digest significant amounts of lactore, the predominant sugar in milk. This inability results from a shortage of the enzyme factase, which is normally produced by the cells that fine the small intestine. Lactase brests down and intestine. Lactase brests down milk that is not small intestine. Lactase brests down milk that is not small intestine. Lactase brests down milk that is not small intestine. Lactase brests down milk that is not small intestine. When there is not enough lactase to digest the amount of lactose consumed, the results may be very distressing, which begin about 30 minutes to 2 hours after eating or drinking foods containing lactose. The severity of symptoms varies depending on the amount of lactose each individual can tolerate.

HOW IS LACTOSE INTOLERANCE TREATED?

INTOLERANCE TRANSDY
Fortunately, actose intolerance is relatively easy to treat. No treatment exists to improve the body's ability of produce lactase, but symptoms can be controlled through diet. For those who react to very small amount of lactose or have frouble limiting their lactase encymes are available at many supermarkets. The milk contains and of the nutrients found in regular milk and remains fresh for about the same length of time or longer if it is superpasticurized.

the state is governed.

As legislator Gerry Adair, R-Roy, noted recently, "The only way to stop them is for the mainstream to speak up." Unfortunately, the mainstream has been slient and has been letting the extremists do most of the talking. That has had an impact with the Utah Legislature, which is dominated by the Republican Party. A new Deserei News/KSL-TV poll, conducted by Dan Jones & Associates, shows that Utahns don't believe lawmakers are representing their views on a number of key issues, such as public education, taxation and gun control. Likewise on family issues such as sex education in schools and parental rights.

While 76 percent of Utah Republicans say their party mirrors the view of mainstream Utahns and 79 the view of mainstream Utanis and O's percent say they are somewhat or very satisfied with the GOP, a formidable chunk of "moderate" Republicans and independent voters are not satisfied.

The poll numbers suggest that the Utan GOP and

The vast majority of level-headed Utahns in both parties need to be more involved in both major parties. They need to attend their mass meetings and become delegates. They cannot afford to abdicate the political process to extremists with agendas. That is not representative government.

Until more level-headed Utahns become more civic minded, the shrill voices will continue to have too much say in state politics.

That would be Charlton Heston, the Oscar winning actor. Admittedly, Heston isn't the draw he once was, but he still has clout where it counts: He can get himself and his message on TV. Surely, Heston has been on more talk shows than all his gun-lobbying predecessors combined. The NRA, proud of its champion, even sells T-shirts that read, "My President is

Gun control issue breeds hypocrisy osie, say it's not sol The news last week was surprising. Rosie O'Donnell's bodyguards had applied for permits for conceuted handguns. Few have declared their opposition to guns as strongly us O'Donnell. with him not to discuss guns.

Her credibility was tarnished by major seller of guns.

Yet the current hypocrisy is more fundamental. A spokes-woman for O'Donnell justifies guns for the talk show host's bodyguards because of threat-

O'Donnell's response that she still does not "personally own a gun" misses the whole point. Of course, she does not need her own gun when her bodyguards have their guns with them.

Unfortunately, o'Donnell joins a long list of people with guns commit crime.

pels, surcounds himself with armed guards even when he visits relatively low-crime areas, but he opposes issuing handgun licenses for people to keep a gun at home in even the most dangerous parts of the city. For their own safety, peoples should not follow what O'Donnell preaches, but what she does: Get armed protection. As she apparently believes for her own safety, and as the statistic bear out, passive behavior is simply not the wisest course of action. The chance of serious plury from an attack is 2 1/2

In Indiana, 70-year-old George Smith stopped two armed rob-bers at a store because he had a gun. As one of the store clerks saw it, "I think George was the real hero. He sawed my life." He likely saved other lives as well, but probably no one outside of Indianapolis has heard of this story.

Indianapolis has heard or unistory.
Unfortunately, no one like Suter or Smith was present at Wendy's last week in Brooklyn when five workers were killed. Defendants who are convicted of capital offenses and sent to Death Row are afforded ample opportunity to prove that they are innocent or that they didn't receive a fair trial or that there is some mitigating circumstance that should spare them the just punishment assigned them by a jury of their peers.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) - The scientist who analyzed some of the DNA of serial killer defendant Robert Lee Yates Jr. has been placed on leave after he admitted lying in a recent King County rape trial. The Washington State Patrol suspended Dr. John Brown from the state crime lab in Seattle on May 19. He had spent two weeks in April comparing Yates' DNA to samples found at crime scenes of women Yates is accused of killing.

The suspension means some DNA tests in the Yates case will have to be performed again, said Daryl Brender, manager of the crime lab in Spokane.

Richard Fasy, Yates' lawyer, is guestioning the reliability of the crime lab's work.

"We're certainly going to follow up on this," Fasy said Friday. "This puts into question any DNA testing that is attributable to Dr. Brown."

Yates, 48, has been charged with aggravated murder in eight slayings in Spokane as well as with attempted morder and attempted robbery. Last week, Yates pleaded innocent to all charges in Spokane County State Patrol Capt. Eric Robertson would not discuss the internal investigation concerning Brown or when it may be finished.

Top line leads Devils

DALLAS - The road to the Stanley Cup is proving to be exactly that for the New Jersey Devils. Less than two weeks after needing an exceptional comeback just to stay alive in the playoffs, the Devils now need only avoid a big comediance of the control of the start of the defending champion Dallas Stars when the series began, take a 21 lead into Game 4 tonight following their 21 victory Saturday night. "We know what this game means now," Devils defenseman Scott Stevens said Sunday." It's Scherrer's turn at Kemper Open

Tom Scherrer follows his drive on the falrway during the final the Kemper

Event keeps legacy of producing first-time winners The Associated Press

POTOMAC, Md. - On Wednesday,
Tom Scherrer received a solid gold ball marker as a good luck charm from one of his pro-am playing partners. Others in the fivesome had reminded Scherrer of the Kemper Open's legacy of producing first-time PGA Tour winners and had suggested it was maybe his tum.
Those amateurs knew what they were talking about. On Sunday, Scherrer, marking his ball with gold, became the tournament's ninth first-time winner.
"One of the guys gave me this solid gold ball mark," Scherrer said. "He said, "If you use this ball mark, you'll win the tournament. I'm going to have that ball mark for a long time."

Scherrer, who didn't lead until the back nino on the final day, closed with a 4-underpar 67 for a two-stroke victory. He was the only player to shoot sub-70 rounds each round, his 67-68-946 reflort earning him the life-changing winner's check.

Scherrer is the fifth first-time tour winner this year, joining Kirk Triplett, Darren Clarke, Jim Curter and Robert Allenby. He also joins Fred Couples (1983), Greg Norman (1984), Bill Glasson (1985), Tom Byrum (1989), Billy Andrade (1991), Grant Waite (1993), Steve Stricker (1996) and Rich Beem (1999) as first-time tour winners at the Kemper.

Steve Lowery, the third-round leader, shot a par 71 and tied for second with Justin Leonard (69), Greg Chalmers (68), Kazuhiko Hosokawa (66) and Franklin Langham (70).

Force becomes NHRA leader, Stewart wins MBNA 400

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) - John Force won the Pro Stock race Sunday at the Prestone Route 66 Nationals and became the NHRA's career leader with his 86th drag racing leader with his 80th arms rauno-victory.

The win moved Force past Pro Stock legend Bob Glidden and also extended his Winston Funny Car points lead over Jerry Tollver. It was Force's fourth straight victory and faith his year.

Force posted a run of 4.842 sec-onds at 318.09 mph to defeat Tollver, who was clocked in 4.934 at 312.64.

312.64.
"I just tripped out," said Force, who was overcome with emotion after reaching the milestone. "I felt like a kid again after that win I was o excited. It's the most awesome feeling in the world."
Force started his NHRA career in 1978, but it took him nine years to win his first national event. Force, 51, dominated the category throughout the 1990s, winning nine Winston championships and loging the majority of his career wins. Gary Scelzi, Ron Krisher, Antron Brown and Bob Panella also were pro category winners in Sunday's $2 million race, the 10th of 23 events in the NHRA Winston Drng. Racing Series.

Coulhard takes Monaco Grand Prix checkered flag-

MONTE CARLO, Monaco -David Coulthard won the Monaco Grand Prix on Sunday when Michael Schumacher was forced to retire because of suspension prob-lems after leading for SS laps.

Coulthard gained his second victory of the season and his first on Monaco's daunting circuit in a race that was delayed more than 30 minutes by crashes and other mishaps at the start.

The Briton, driving a McLaren-Mercedes, benefited from forced withdrawals, first by Jarno Trulli and then by Schumacher, to score his eighth Formula One career victory.

Teacher says drug testing tough call

By Jennifer Sandmann Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Adoption of a drug and alcohol testing policy that includes pre-employment screening was a tough call for Twin Falls School District teachers, their union president said.

"It is a scary thing to watch constitutional rights be eroded as society changes," said Roy Graybill, outgoing president of the Twin Falls Education Association.

The new policy will extend to administrative and support staff, and could lead to testing students who want to participate inextracturicular activities.

The above the school board adopted teacher contracts for the 200-01 school year that include the new policy, set to come back before the School Board afor formal adoption June 13. The policy includes preemployment screening, post-activent testing, and testing when 13. The policy includes pre-employment screening, post-acci-dent testifing, and testing when supervisors have reasonable sus-piction of substance abuse. Drug testing wasn't a deal-breaker in negotiations, bit teachers were tom over the Isspe that has evolved over several years, Graybill said. "I think it's the nature of the teachers in this district to not be thinking of themselves... but what is good for the kids," he said.
The policy makes the district want is good where the district somewhat of a pioneer, Graybill said, and that causes him some concern. During he resident that use an employee drug-screening policy. Thus Falls teachers were hestant to set the example, yet they also wanted to protect children. "What we do will impact not only this region but the state," Graybill said.

The Idaho Education Association said Twin Falls is the first school district it has heard of to adopt such a policy. Jack VanValkenburgh, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Idaho, said constitutionality issues are involved where public employees and drug testing are concerned. The Fourth Amendment protects against unlawful government searches and seizures, including drug feesting. Private employees have fewer rights, VanValkenburgh said.

Graham Boyd, director of the ACLU's Drug Folicy Litigation Project in Washington, D.C., and Constitution of the State of the Calu's Drug Folicy Litigation Project in Washington, D.C., and constitution of the said.

Case law allows blanket screening such as pre-employment testing of public workers—when public safety is an issue, such as in law enforcement or public transportation. But where teachers fall along that line is unclear, Boyd said.

Both the unforwand school district said no to random testing.

Burley pool offers summer of swimming fun, safety and lessons

BURLEY - The lifeguards have been trained and swimmers have registered for a swimming season that begins today in Burley. Swimming lessons, taught in two-week, sessions, are available for youth of all ages at least 6 months old. Lessons will be taught by American Red Cross-certified water-safety instructors. Swim classes are still available. The dases never fill up, because more instructors are brought on as more students sign up, said Dennis Peterson, the city recreation director.

Baker has grazed his cows for about 16 years on the 49,000-acre Elk Creek Allotment, partly in the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness northwest of Stanley. He has U.S. Forest Service grazing permits for 738 cow-call pairs for 110 days worth of grazing.
The area has been grazed since about 1900. But grazing has reduced the creeks' value as fish spawning and rearing streams, officials said. The Forest Service rated much of the stream in poor condition, and it will take a while to recover.

For years Baker and government officials worked on the way his cows grazed the alloment to reduce the effects of livestock on the creeks. They cut the numbers and kept the cattle out of areas with spawning habitat.

But nothing worked, Baker said. In 1992, the National Marine Fisheries Service designated Elk Creek as critical habitat for endangered Snake River spring and summer chinook salmon.

Kauffman carlier said he did not intend to disturb noise-sensitive areas nor alienate the public.
"We are trying to do as much research to find out what can be doffe about restricting overflights from national parks," said Frunz Camerizind, the alliance's executive director.

Helicopter flights are "obnoxious" and an "intrusion into our environment," he said.

Historian and summer resident Bob Righter characterized his initial reaction as rage.
"I think this is a totally inappropriate use of the airport and a tremendous pressure on the national park," he said. "They are a tremendous imposition
are a tremendous imposition for air and the beauty of national parks."
Because the airport receives.

Because the airport receives federal funds, it must allow the tours, airport administrator Jeane Kirkpatrick said.

Grand Teton National Park officials say their hands are tied because an agreement between the Department of the Interior and the airport board specifically allows seenic flichts.

and the airport board specifically allows seenic flights.
"Basically it says that a scenic flight is allowed as long as it takes place outside of the noise-nestive areas," park administrator George Helfrich said.
"Regardless on the park's thoughts on the appropriateness or inappropriateness, they are allowed."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

same functions over and over again, he will not even be a good ant, not to mention a good hu-man being." - Norbert Wiener

Try your luck at today's heart game. After you win dummy's diamond ace at trick one, what do you lead at trick two? Caution: Take note of East's opening bid. After you win dummy's diamond ace, the routine play at trick two is to lead a trump. What happens if South yields to habi?

East wins his trump ace and has an automatic shift to spades. This gives the defenders the tempoto establish a spade winner before South can establish a club winner, and South loses a trump, a spade and two clubs.

The thoughtful play at trick two is a club, not a trump. And since South has no quick entry to his hand to finesse against a possible queen with West, he must lead a low club from dummy.

The club lead at trick two puts South in command. East must win his queen or lose it, and he loses the tempo to establish a spade winner. South's king wins East's spade shift, and another club lead mocks out East's club ace. Another spade lead goes to dummy's ace, but South enjoys a spade discard on a high club from dummy. This limits South's losses to a trump and two clubs, and South scores his touchy game.

Many yield to habit at trick two to lose their games. Habitual play at trick two comes in a close second—and with equally costly results.
